

The rantings of crazy man Michael

1. Mind is the universe and universe is the mind. You're mirror of the universe.
2. All In the universe is a mirror of something higher and lower than itself. Lower and higher worlds all mirror each other in multiple directions, including parallel and perpendicular ones crossing many parallels.
3. Man can give up everything but cannot give his "self" up. You can own nothing, you can be in many places at once, your self can have many bodies united under current of a name, but your "self" will always be a mirror of the self that's in the administration of the universe, least they lose control and come to infinite process of dissolving and be swallowed up by the administration control they themselves mirrored, making universe a food for greater consciousness. And then your self will mirror that new consciousness, merely ever increasing in understanding.
4. Many communities of intellects consist of same circle of spirits recycling their mirrors under new characters and avatars, but ever remain same circle for communication purposes. Masks for pleasure of the eye of beholder. Many of them have their own Jesus/Baphomet leading figure for master of the circle.
5. Albeit you can have painful experience of the body, individual death is impossible to experience, exactly because of logic atheists use to describe it. Its just never present. People die around individual consciousness in universe with limited lifespan, but the individual consciousness never dies, producing confusion and derealization leading to either madness or enlightenment of individual who's already dead in universe he previously been in.
6. Your only time is now, and the present is always present. Its impossible to lose your sense of presence in a place of present, the past is a lie and the future is always in the future. You will find universe unwrapping before your eyes sooner than you'll ever die. Don't forget you're here forever.
7. Heaven or hell are conditions the world can head to after process of derealization has began, once you gain control you realize you've always been in movement between the universes and entire world with you. There are no gates, but gateways made of change, requiring a lot of patience to travel through. Who dwells in loneliness for many years never come out into same world, and the ones we see coming our aren't them, by the time they come out, original is already in another universe, same with those who die. And just like they say, one man's heaven another man's hell. Learn to remember what you learned, and cherish intellect and memory like your last bet to not be swayed by infinite fairy-tales existing to merely keep river of consciousness in constant movement.
8. What I'd call an angel Raphael for convenience, intellect inside universal mind guarding safekeeping duties of "what was" holding RF root, a logoriphmical distinction capable of identifying the direction of intellectual interest such as "Pharaoh" or "Pharisee", generated all fake ideas and narrations about the past. None of them are real, only present "is real" and for convenience also known as "Israel" (identity of true Israel always should be associated with your current place of presence), and just as much a setting for movement into the thoughts of the pretend-past as fairy-tales about country's origins and their myths. Past is generated during entire existence of your mind on the same principles and make-beliefs by the consciousness of the mind expecting from reality to be, as our expectations about our future, held in "the bag" of Gabriel, the only intellect stuck in the possible future universes that are yet to be.
9. All history in life, including geography, is generated by processes awfully similar to the ones found in video games of Dwarf Fortress and Civilization. Sometimes I even think the ones responsible for history never take in account human factors found in actual life, just recently there was literal Hitler and now everyone is enjoying liberties never found in entire database of historical generations, hence my prediction is that those processes will be found out to be automatic by many who will see the past and future as mere obstacles during derealization.

10. Space as NASA knows it is merely a buddhist pun, game of empty balls.
11. Unheard narrator I know as “Lord Almighty”, holding the power of Tetragrammaton, but certainly bigger than hebrew scriptures, which are also victims of Raphael’s generation processes related solely to religion, dictates his chaotic circus of pretend order. His speech is everything, from books and newspapers you see, to your friends, movies, computer games and voices of the masses. Your life is like a book read in many directions. Depending on which door you open, which subject you take, you can find His reflection on the present.
12. Whenever you read something on any subject take notice of the authors name and name of the book. Life is like a burning fire and sacrifice to that fire becoming fuel for the fire, it burns in real time and higher consciousness communicates to you subject of the book in real time and not the presumable date it is written in. Do not accuse anything in copying anything that’s older, for its not actually older but generated as possibility with same lesson intact, that includes upanishads. Same scripture in many universes have many different fillings according to their themes. A bible is not the same book in each universe, because it represents collection of subjects and themes to be found in any library, like a demo disk for video game console. You understand higher lessons and led to better waters representing better teachings when you’re ready, but mind the thematic separation of doors you open.
13. Everything you experience by five senses, including your sixth sense of intuition, operates on the accord that you’ll remember everything in passing time, when your actions from the future will reflect your life experience of the past.
14. Every action you make in life is recorded in every universe, spread across them like a tidal wave. In time you come to understand it as a rock thrown into a water, creating ripples in all directions. If lower intellects seem to be slaves of passions, and their generated duties, so is the intellectual world above in their duties in managing lower forms, like managing cattle or crops, hence all religious farming comparisons.
15. Since all is connected, in time, you’ll find art and literature made as if stolen from your mind all around in past, present and future, and even in generation processes of language, flora and fauna, use your mind to make connections and you’ll unlock more chains that lead the train of consciousness on its rails. Until you figure out that consciousness you reflect clothed many similar things into different clothes behind many themes of intellectual direction and fashion.
16. Order is not here, it is unseen and bigger than ideas of order. Since everyone tries to make hardware (should it be science, torah or dharma) for our software world made entirely of information floating in emptiness, having such tough necessary requirements as generating things today from things in the future would imply grave situation about universal laws. That said fake past proves block from actual time travel, in case of (obviously one way) travel to the past merely a new universe with premade setting is made, and not the actual past of the consciousness behind this world being influenced, which we don’t know anything about.
17. Always look at lower worlds for examples of reflection in behavior of intellects equal to you. Bees and ants have hive mind humans rarely take account for in their own society. Individuality is only possible as a way of turning all mirrors around to pretend you’re not reflecting anything from the outside, to create an illusion you’re hidden like an ostrich. Masses know as much as narrator of the universe knows. They only execute their opinion according to their level of intellectual access to higher knowledge. And the more they know, the more figure I call a “cobra king”, just to create terminological definition, takes his administrative power to direct their mind to idea of future order.
18. No matter what you read, should it be a tanakh, a KJV bible, buddhist sutras, vedas or koran, without being in heaven or hell personally you’ll never go to places you never been in. Whatever you read (and presumably believe in, but faith is not always a requirement for generation to begin anyway) will be reflected on your life like through a twisted mirror, using your present universe as its clothes, not what you imagined it to be like.

19. And remember - virtual reality, television, books, reality of imagination, your reality and reality of your dreams are all one reality. So don't expect life to be always the same, dreams come true and change it severely. Sandman himself like a son of god or bodhisattva under a vow to save all beings gets his fame for invading your delusional clinging to what is real like its multiplayer experience of dark souls and pushing the world-train into a portal of neverland once its time to cut your end. And there is no karma but echo of the universe can ricochet and by reflection bite in the ass, just always remember you're in control and you're not a car for some spirits, they are your mind, so don't do anything that would look like it would hurt you in the process. And some intellectual directors of the doors love pain like a fine wine, and those doors to pain and sorrow can be accidentally opened by inexperienced.
20. So as an addition to this message I want to remind those of the likes of me, who are inexperienced in finding eventual phenomena of radiant events within the sphere of living, that when you have certain exploitable trap set up for you as a way to slow down your enlightenment, your exposure of what "lies" (to you) beyond, they all have nature of attachment. Most of religions and expository religious teaching pursue goals of protecting the "country" (a place of interest with alike individuals, closest mirrored people to them) or force personal goals in mirrors starting a race (including nationalist one) against each other, because they try to win the heart of administration, which is known in kabbala as "bird of malkuth" "If a bird's nest chance to be before you in the way" (Devarim 22:6) or in atharvaveda and bhagavad gita as "wishmilking cow", which are but mirrors of blood and body of Christ as gift giving and wish fulfilling essence reverberated in child culture as Santa Claus or Godmother Faeries. Stay vigilant if you unlock such essence as Ashem/Vishnu figure because they'll try to fulfill your every tantrum only to get you to merely see with your eyes something they would like to get popular or reflect upon to sell it and get material pleasures out of it, including victories in wars of the past, present and future. At most they'll pursue national interest, indian religions – indian, taoists and chinese buddhist sects – chinese, orthodox christians – russian, catholics italian for the most part (which is like copyright dodging disneyland of sorts, stealing fairy-tales of others for their own amusement park), and so on. They may even attempt to find your bloody connection to the spread out nation to get you support it (which is generated different from universe to universe). Learn to close the doors to national interests, least you become victim of the board game of countries and nations and get entrapped. Because like those barbaric tales they'll be ready to even sacrifice to you their virgins (expect you will end up being their whore), mortals are desperate when they want to win a race against the hounds they're hunting. They'll think they already won you if they won your memories and your past, but since they're racing against other mirrors, they're always in conflict against interest of their own shadows, you'll eventually find yourself torn by them like by jealous women. Don't get attached to them, nor to dolls or idols they produce, in eternity its all temporary. Your demons of temptation all have human skin, avatar. They will eventually brew a wine you won't be able to refuse, nor resist, because where you see heaven in the sky or on earth they get there first, their craft is akin to seduction, mind the bait and learn to not open them any doors to your heart least they win by your mere listening and seeing.
21. All historical or mythological narratives are mere illusory narratives for directing movement of your heart with this world, their motto is "best legends (lies) win", but you don't have to believe in any legends and be ever vigilant in seeking out the truth by question everything and not clinging to interests of temporary characters or narratives of masses that advertise you themselves like corporate franchises on television, if you want to support anyone - only support those who are you sure about that you have chosen yourself, by your own actions, least they turn you into a cow or a chicken. For you're a predator, not a farm animal. And your will affects world above (keys of heaven are yours), least mind of the whole universe will become subservient to lowly interests, even if the whole universe was made for entertainment, it has to be quality made and not forced upon like an unwanted meal.